

Support KPBS today!

Give now ▶▶

Live Radio

Facebook

Twitter

RSS

Newsletters

Home Post

THE MILITARY IN SAN DIEGO

Share Email Permalink +1

Summer Film Program For Military Kids With Autism in San Diego

Thursday, May 10, 2012
 By Beth Ford Roth

Credit: Inclusion Films

Above: Filmmaking summer camp

Military children with autism will have the opportunity to learn about filmmaking this summer through a free two-week program in San Diego.

Joey Travolta, actor and brother of John Travolta, will be the students' guide - with the help of professional filmmakers from Inclusion Films, Travolta's filmmaking workshop for adults with disabilities.

According to ACT Today!:

This experience will not only give participants the opportunity to work with professional film makers, but will promote individual creativity, build self-esteem, and may lead to lasting friendships.

The program takes place from June 18 through June 29 at Cox Communications Headquarters in San Diego. The short film produced by the budding filmmakers will be debuted in September at a special red carpet premiere.

There's still time to apply. To find out more about the program, click here.

ADVERTISEMENT

Become a KPBS sponsor today!

Most Popular

Most Commented

Most E-mailed

- Mayor Sanders Applauds President's Same-Sex Marriage Decision | 19 comments
- Council Considers Flag Project Celebrating Gay Pride | 36 comments
- San Diego County Launches Campaign Against Childhood Obesity | 1 comment
- Somalis In City Heights Lead Fight Against Liquor License | 24 comments

ADVERTISEMENT